Scoring Rubrics

11 Answer: The student will likely provide repeats of phrases from the webpage as information such as:

- who the heroes were
- all about the movies and books about the Alamo
- see a map of the Alamo
- how to take a tour of the Alamo
- the Mexican point of view about the battle

For the memoir, they should inference that the information gives a personal viewpoint of how the battle impacted a real family and a real boy. You can learn how people felt and about some of the specific details leading up to the battle.

4	Student provides several logical and accurate responses related to the type of information that can be gathered from the webpage and the memoir. There are no errors or major omissions of obvious content.
3	Student provides several logical responses; however, some may be more vaguely put, or the student may recite exactly the buttons and links from the webpage. At this score point, the student may have much more to say about the webpage than the memoir. While generally accurate and apt, the argument may be unbalanced.
2	Student provides some logical responses, but may only give one source or provide general responses in one to two sentences for each side.
1	Student makes too many errors and has too many omissions for the response to be considered minimally sufficient.
0	Student does not attempt the task.
